TELEPHONE BILLS . . .

Don't forget that not all of your monthly remittance is retained by the Telephone company. A portion of your total bill, as you know, goes to the Federal government in the form of excise taxes.

> The tax on local service rentals and on all toll messages under 25 cents is 15 percent. On toll messages of 25 cents and over, the tax is 25 percent. For example: If your local bill for monthly service is $3.45, forty-five cents of that amount is tax. If you have a toll bill for the month of $5.00, one dollar of that is tax. We merely collect the tax and pass it on to the government.

CHAPTER VII Comes in all decked out for the night life. Soup and fish. Gave me once-over and had a few quick straight ones without more than glance at me sitting there with my tongue hanging out. When the but ler stuck his snoot in the door, he spat out, 'Tell my mother I'm going out this evening.' Not his wife, mind you—his mother.'

"Mama's big boy."
"Oh, sure. He and his wife don" get along, I take it?"

"Your surmise is a good one, think." "Well, while he was having his snort, the wife comes in. I'd been wondering who'd been playing chopsticks all night until she stood there in the doorway, looking daggers at and he walks by her without siglance. She put her hand out, but he brushed her off."

"She's kind of helpless where he is concerned, I guess." 'Helpless! About as helpless as the Bethlehem Steel corporation. You got her docketed all wrong. She's pure chromium plate. She just watched him go, gave me a big icy stare and helped herself to a half glass of liquor. Then King, the major-domo, calls her to the phone and she goes out."

"She had a phone call?"
"Yep. After which she banged heck out of the piano for another helf hour."

"She went out, you say?" "Yes, she did. She wasn't gone long. About an hour. When she came home, she messed around the ivories until hubby rolled in, about twelve o'clock. Then the place quieted down for the night." "Stephen came home late?" "Yes. He must have heard her going in 'cause a door opened up-stairs. The piano stopped. He shouted something or other at her that I didn't get. Then a couple more doors slammed." "That the story?"

"All but mama. There's an old die-hard. If there's anything rocks my boat, it's the old gals that won't give up the ship. The kind that in-sist on tying a little pink bow in their hair up to their sixty-fifth birthday. She takes showers in sherry, too. You notice?"

"Oh, all of that. Of them all, I think she'd be the one to crack. She talk to you?"

"No. She came in looking like Alice after being in Wonderland for fifty-odd years, and made a zig-zag for the buffet." She impressed you as the 'Look-

"You bet. Of course, she's developed on more generous lines." "You're very observant."
"How could I miss it? She stopped King in the hall and asked for Stephen. She almost dropped when he told her sonny boy was doing the town. Then she yelled for Karen. While King went looking for her, she went through a gamut of facial expressions worthy of any one of the old silent movie gals. When the butler reported that Karen had gone out too, she made a beeline for the upstairs. In about twenty minutes, she came down looking like the Merry Widow-and just as worn out. She called a cab and made her exit." "When did she get home?" "Just before Stevey-boy. She came in, or floated in, would be more like it. She had just got the shock of her life. No act this time. I actually had to help her upstairs, though I'll bet she won't remember

Even now you will not admit it, even to yourself. I have gone on that premise from the first that you wanted me to find out things without even the responsibil-ity on your part of telling me what."

She rose stiffly, without answer-ing, and crossed the room to the front window.

She saw the same view she must have seen thousands of times be fore. A curious agitation seized her by the shoulders, but she did not speak.

McCale continued, talking very quietly, a motionless figure in a gray chalk-striped suit, following her with his eyes.

"I wish to withdraw from the case, Miss Bigelow. There's noth-

"Oh. no!" The words, half musfled in the heavy atmosphere, magnified themselves in the vastness of the room. The fire crackled flercely for a long minute, while the essence of fear hung in the air like a strong accent. "It is necessary for me, since you will not confide in me, to tell you exactly what it is that is bothering you—what it is that you fear. You see, I know. What is it?"

Miss Bigelow turned once more to the room and McCale saw into her mind quite easily.

Everybody's joshing Willie Wells about going back to school. They romember when Willie would hide out in the woodshed scared to bring his report card home to Pa.

But under the G.I. Bill of Rights, Willie (who has a wife and baby) is getting a free oducation at the Agricultural College. And Uncle Sam is giving him a fine report: "Deportment, excellent; Progress, above average."

That goes for all those under-graduate voterans. Like Willie, they appréciate an education more than

Bank Change

(Continued from Page One) was a member of the board of education from 1007 to 1927, the last three years as president. Mr. Truettner represented Bessemer as state senator for three terms, 1923-5-7, during which times made important contributions as a member of the finance and appro-priation committee, the banks and corporations committee, and the conservation committee. He has always been a Republican and is a member of all branches of the Masonic organization, having held high offices in the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery

It has been repeatedly said of Mr. Truettner, at the many functions at which he has been the honor guest, that no banker has such a wide acquaintance throughout the state

Mrs. Truettner—they were mar-ried in Iron Mountain September 17, 1902—is a member of another northern Michigan family which is as important in Detroit through its sons as are the Truettners. was Laura M. Cudlip. Their son, Walter J., is sales manager of the internationally famous Dow Chemical Company of Midland, and their daughter is Mrs. Clayton Purdy, wife of a distinguished attor-ney. There are six grandchildren.

Mr. Truettner was feted many times in Detroit by a host of friends in every walk of life before he left for Grayling—and no bank-er, ever received more congratu-latory mail from as many cities in the state as he did when it became the state as he did when it became unofficially known that he would head the Grayling institution.

"I am no stranger to Grayling and have always had a tremendous-admiration for the city and the beautiful territory in which it is so strategically located. I would never have considered coming here without the definite assurance that without the definite assurance that the officers and personnel and di rectors would remain with the exception of the Chairman of the Board, and the President. The latter, however, will remain on the Board as Director. They have built one of the finest banks in the State in one of the State's finest counties. We knew that Mr. Han-son, Chairman of the Board, and Mr. Bruun, the President, wanted to retire to devote all their time to other important interests and there is nothing I can say in tribute to them that would equal the trib-utes Grayling has already paid them. They have given them their complete confidence and they have proved completely worthy of it. "I believe Grayling has yet to see its greatest prosperity. No city in this State of great cities is as well known and beloved for its winter and summer advantages as Grayling. None other offers more perfect facilities the whole year around," Mr. Truettner said. "I have loved my time in Detroit and the work I was able to do there to bring about a closer co operation there between all of the banks and the interests of the State. But I am glad to be back in a small town, in a good town where my Bessemer experience and my Detroit experience and my Lansing experience can be com-bined. I hope I will have the sup port of all of the people in Craw-ford County—but I know I shall have to earn that."
